“Australians are under-insured”

Self-directed journeys are failing

- › Self-directed consumers struggle to complete their journey in a way that satisfies their need for control
- › Researching their options can last several months, with stops & starts
- › Effort creates anxiety & many journeys fail or result in default choices

Coverbuilder
